National Food Safety Standard

General Rule of Compound Food Additives

1 Range

This standard applies to all compound food additives except for food essences and chewing gum base.

2 Terms and definitions

2.1 Compound food additives

The food additives mixed with two or more food additives of single variety by physical methods in order to improve food quality, and facilitate food processing.

2.2 Excipients

The food material added for the purpose of processing, storage, and dissolution of compound food additives.

3 Naming principle

3.1 The name of the food additive compounded by food additives with single and the same function shall be determined by their functions when applied for terminal food, i.e. "Compound" + "Function Category Name of Food Additives in GB2760", such as: Compound colorants, compound preservatives and others.

3.2 If it is compounded by several functional food additives with the same functions, or food additives with different functions, it can be named by all the functions or major functions in the terminal food, i.e. "Compound" + "Function Category Name of Food Additives in GB2760", and the terminal food category name can be added to the name, i.e. "Compound" + "Food category" + "Function Category Name of Food Additives in GB2760".
